Eco Committee Blog update

Our school's vegetable patch and the allotment dedicated for parents are experiencing robust growth in the current climatic conditions, primarily owing to the diligent efforts of our students who water the numerous plots on a daily basis. Several fruits and vegetables have already been harvested and have been given to the school kitchen to prepare for our school lunches.

As the designated period approaches for the eco committee to deliberate upon the selection of its representatives from each class for the upcoming year, preparations are underway to conduct elections across the entirety of the school. This presents an invaluable occasion for our eco committee to engage in reflection, meticulously assessing the achievements and milestones accomplished throughout the current year. Furthermore, it offers an opportune platform for disseminating this information to our classes, thereby ensuring that aspiring candidates are well-informed about the prospective responsibilities and benefits associated with assuming such a position in the following year.
